Movies Are Cornering TV Stories

By ALINE MOSBY

United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — Television
 used to be a forbidden word in movie circles, but these days movie-makers are cornering the year's best TV stories, actors and writers.

Next year the same stories you saw in 21 inches at home for nothing will wind up in glorious Cinmascope, color, etc., in the theaters.

Producer Burt Lancaster started it all by making a movie hit of a TV story by Paddy Chayevsky:
 "Marty." Now MGM has three TV dramas in its movie mill.

Gore Vidal, another top TV writer, was hired to pen a screenplay
 of Chayevsky's popular video play,
 "A Cateer Affair." The original author also arrived at MGM to help with the script, which stars Bette Davis.

Triple-Play

TV writer Rod Serling parlayed his scripts into a triple-play. He was hired by MGM to write a screenplay of a magazine story,
 "Fifty-Two Miles To Tarrytown." MGM also is filming his "The Rack," starring Paul Newman, an actor discovered on TV. Next month Serling will write another of his hit TV plays, "The Strike,"
 as an MGM film.

Independent producer Michael Meyerberg already has produced a movie from Serling's TV drama that won the Sylvania award last week, "Patterns."

Meyerberg also plans to make a movie next year of another Serling
 teleplay, "Incident In An Alley."

Serling is an example of the young TV talent hurried into big movie money overnight. He is only 31. Vidal is 30. Chayevsky 34. The three writers are good-looking enough to be actors, and look young enough to be sharpening pencils as script boys instead of writing big-league movies.

Real Art Form
 Only five years ago Serling sold his first teleplay for $100. He wrote dramas at a Cincinnati TV station before moving to New York. As he says, "When I went into TV it was a stepchild — now it's a real art form."

But Serling insisted he will not abandon TV in favor of the movies.

"I'm going back to New York
 after these movie jobs," he says.
 "I'm more at home in TV. I prefer it because you have much more freedom in writing. And I've signed with CBS to write 90-minute dramas."

At MGM the young writer is drawing $35,000 for seven weeks — about ten times what he made for a teleplay. Serling, his wife and their two children now live in a plushy Beverly Hills home.

"This may very well spoil me," he frankly admits. "I haven't had the money long enough to know for sure whether it will."

The American Veterinary Medical Association expects about 15 million "Furcells" blood antigen tests for brucellosis to be conducted in the United States during 1955.

Kaposis in dairy cattle may cause up to $10,000,000 loss in the United States some years. About half the loss is in the form of reduced milk production; the other half in meat losses.

THE DEMOCRATS are making
 "demonstrably false statements" and offering "quack remedies and discarded 'nostrums'" in an effort to make political capital of the farm
 situation, Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson tells the GOP National committee in Chicago. (International)

Week In Manhattan

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

United Press Staff Correspondent
 NEW YORK — A week in Manhattan:

Women already cover their legs
 in cold weather with wispy weaves
 of nylon, so sheer every goose pimple shows. Now they can reveal even more, if it's possible.

New stockings made of perlon,
 a synthetic yarn closely akin to nylon, arrived this week from abroad. They are 90-gauge, seven-and one-half denier, which, in simple language means they are almost invisible.

Denier refers to the thickness of the thread. We started out wearing 40 denier nylon stockings in 1940 and recently have worn as low as 10 denier. Gauge refers to the closeness of the weave. A 90-gauge stocking uses 90 needles for each one and one-half inches of stockings. The thinner the thread, or lower the denier number the higher the gauge, since the stockings must have enough elasticity to wear a little while, at least.

Hans Thierfelder, president of the Arwa Corp. of Germany, arrived along with the first shipment of the new perlon stockings. Thier-felder came directly from Paris (pronounced Paris), South Africa, where he has a plant. He said the American stockings would be made in a new plant in Berlin.
 He went, as it turned out, Berlin, N.J.

Sheerness doesn't come cheap.
 The perlon wispes will cost $10 for two pairs. You can't buy just one pair, for a reason Thierfelder
 does not make clear.

An American company (Decade), has been making 75 gauge, seven denier stockings on a strictly experimental basis since last summer for $4.95 per pair, but he sold them only in one exclusive

Fifth Avenue store. The perlon stockings will be sold nationally.

Women are getting to be bigger tippers than men. That's what Frank Garlasco, owner of Daniel's Restaurant on East Side Manhattan, insists.

"They learn quick," Garlasco
 said. "Women eat as much as men most of the time too. I'd rather have women as lunch customers than men. Men drink more and sit around, talking-business over cigars."

Garlasco said 15 per cent of the check is an adequate tip, though some of his women customers leave 20 per cent.

TRAPPED EIGHT HOURS UNDER CHESAPEAKE BAY

Tallarico is helped out of water at end of eight-hour ordeal 125 feet below surface.

He emerges from decompression chamber — and talks to reporters later, his wife beside him.
 33-YEAR-OLD Joseph R. Tallarico, a U. S. Navy diver, apparently was none the worse for wear after a near miraculous eight hours under Chesapeake bay, trapped 125 feet below the surface when his lifeline became entangled on an anchor chain leading to a harmless mine. He was down there more than seven hours longer than what is considered maximum for survival under such pressure. Force of the tide prevented earlier rescue. (International Soundphoto)

Irish Star Is Hit In A Hit

By JACK GAVER
United Press Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — Siobhan McKenna is a hit in a hit — and she still isn't convinced that she's the actress who should be playing the part.

The role is that of a rather mysterious governess in a British country household in Enid Bagnold's "The Chalk Garden." There is something rebellious against society under the calm, efficient exterior.

"When they sent me the script several months ago," Miss McKenna explained, "I was greatly intrigued by it. I thought it was one of the best new plays I had read in a long time. But I simply couldn't see myself in the role of Madrigal."

Favored Wendy Hiller. "I sent several replies to Miss Bagnold and to the producer, Irene Madrigal."

settled down in her hit, husband Denis O'Dean, a leading Irish actor and director, was brought over to appear in "The Righteous Are Bold," which is now in rehearsal for a Broadway opening on Dec. 22, and along with him came their 7-year-old son, 10-year-old daughter, and 11-year-old son. The only thing needed now is for O'Dean's vehicle to turn out to be a success.

"We had to bring a Gaelic governess - tutor over for Donnacha," Miss McKenna said, "because he's being educated in a Gaelic language school, and we don't want to interrupt that sort of training."

Gaelic and English are spoken interchangeably in the family circle.

An experimental diet containing 50 per cent protein and several antibiotics produced kittens that grew better and were healthier than a control group.

The dog food industry in America is approximately equal to the breakfast food industry in gross sales, according to the American Feed Manufacturers Association.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN
AT BREAKFAST Mrs. Tyler was trying to hear about the party. Who had attended? What had been served? There was a knocking on the back door, just then and Lora started nervously. That would probably be Ambrose with the puppy and it was all she could do to refrain from running to the door. She had worried ever since rising over this matter of getting the puppy into her own hands before anyone else realized its existence. If Mrs. Tyler were to see it first— But John Ambrose had thought the problem out himself. In a moment Ellie came to the dining-room door, looking mildly suspicious. It was for Mrs. Wade Tyler, she said, and mentioned no names. "Well, tell whoever it is to come in. Don't stand there," Mrs. Tyler ordered.

Before Ellie could comply, Lora slipped from her chair and hurried to the door. Ambrose was waiting in the kitchen with a small covered basket in his hands. "Good morning, Mrs. Tyler," he said pleasantly. "It's that matter we spoke about," and behind Ellie's back he gave her a hasty wink.

"Yes, of course," Lora said. "Please come in, Mr. Ambrose. If you'll bring the basket right in where the Christmas tree is..."

They left Ellie in the kitchen, partly popping with curiosity, and hurried to the parlor. Not until the door was closed behind them did Ambrose reach gently for the thin covering that lay over the basket. He drew it part way back to reveal the snug little ball of warmth that lay sleeping within. "I've been teaching him to nip his milk and he's a fine scholar. His belly's full now and he'll sleep a while, but don't leave him alone too long. He's a mischievous one."

She knelt beneath the Christmas tree and put the basket around toward the back behind the other presents, half-hidden by the tree trunk. This, of course, was the climax, to be opened last—if the puppy himself would permit. She rose and held out her hand to Jenny's grandfather.

"I can never thank you enough," she could feel the rough hardness of his hand as he pressed hers. "Well, all thank you, ma'am, if you can fix it so he gets to keep this little feller."

"I shall fix it," Lora said firmly. "But now I'd better go back before Mother Tyler sends some one to investigate."

She would not let him out the back way, but took him to the front door, and opened it for him.

"Merry Christmas, Mr. Ambrose," she said.

"Just met it John," he told her. "I'd feel more comfortable and Merry Christmas to all of you, Mrs. Tyler."

"After all, John, we are friends," she reminded him.

He reached into his pocket just before he went down the steps and drew out a small tissue-wrapped package of his own.

"Will you do me the favor of putting this under the tree for the boy? He doesn't have a good knife of his own as every boy should, and this is a fine one."

"I know he'll be proud of it, John," Lora said, and took the package from him.

Mrs. Tyler looked up from her wheatear, instantly suspicious.

"Who was that? Why was he not brought into this room as directed?"

Lora put a light hand on her arm. "Mother, this is Christmas. We're all permitted our secrets at Christmas time. And this is a secret no one can know about till later."

Mrs. Tyler snorted indignantly, but Lora saw only the shine in Jenny's eyes. No matter what happened, that shine must remain. When they had all settled around the tree, the picking of packages to be opened began. They must each choose in turn. Lora said, and each package must be opened before they went on to the next. But first of all Jenny's stocking.

"Excitement's not good for the boy," Mrs. Tyler muttered as he took down the striped stocking and pulled out the contents eagerly. But no one paid any attention to her.

The wishbone he hung over one

Independent producer Michael Myerberg already has produced a movie from Serling's TV drama that won the Sylvania award last week, "Patterns."

Myerberg also plans to make a movie next year of another Serling teleplay, "Incident in An Alley." Serling is an example of the young TV talent hurtling into the movie money overnight. He is only 31. Vidal is 30, Chayevsky 34. The three writers are good-looking enough to be actors, and look young enough to job sharpening pencils as script boys instead of writing big-league movies.

Only five years ago Serling sold his first teleplay for $100. He wrote dramas at a Cincinnati TV station before moving to New York. As he says, "When I went into TV it was a stepchild — now it's a real art form."

But Serling insisted he will not abandon TV in favor of the movies.

"I'm going back to New York after these movie jobs," he says. "I'm more at home in TV. I prefer it because you have much more freedom in writing. And I've signed with CBS to write 90-minute dramas."

At MGM the young writer is drawing $35,000 for seven weeks — about ten times what he made for a teleplay. Serling, his wife and their two children now live in a plushy Beverly Hills home.

"This may very well spell me," he frankly admits. "I haven't had the money long enough to know for sure whether it will."

The American Veterinary Medical Association expects about 15 million Lumpy Skin Disease cases in the United States during 1955.

When selecting paint for a room, remember that the sample should be lighter than the finished effect. Color on a large area looks darker than it does on a small surface, and four walls of the same color reflect each other, deepening the shade.

For a quick dessert, blend ginger-snap crumbs with softened butter and a little sugar and press against the sides and bottom of custard cups or a piepan. Chill, then fill with a layer of sliced bananas, nuts and top with vanilla pudding.

Norman-Boyd Vows To Be Solemnized In December

Want a Husband? There's Less Competition in the West

THIS CHART translates U. S. Census bureau figures into the same advice Horace Greeley gave almost a hundred years ago, "Go West." Single females 14 and over make up only 13.9 per cent of population in the west. But in the south and north central states they are 18 per cent strong, and in the northeast 21 per cent. Thus, young woman (in the mood to marry?) there is less competition out west.

Garden Department Has Special Meet Thursday Afternoon

The Garden Department of the Murray Woman's Club held a special meeting at the club house on Thursday, December 1, at one thirty o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Max Churchill who is co-chairman with Mrs. Fred Cohan of the Christmas Decorating Contest made a report concerning the annual event.

Announcement was made of the general meeting of the Woman's Club to be held Friday evening, December 9, at which time a Christmas program will be presented. The Garden Department will have its annual Christmas party at the home of Mrs. M. O. Wraether on December 15.

Following the business meeting a work shop was held in the basement. Different types of decorations were on display and each one present worked on decorations for her home.

The leaders making the various decorations and instructing the members were as follows: Mrs. Eaf Huie, door; Mrs. A. O. Woods, table; Mrs. Ollie Brown, mantle.

Empty butter or margarine cartons are convenient for molding cookie dough which is to be stored in the refrigerator for chilling.

Check

Here Is Why:

- You save time and steps, paying bills. No standing in line. No bother.
- You avoid the risk of losing large sums. You carry your cash in your fountain pen!
- Your cancelled checks are receipts that stop arguments before they start.
- You have a permanent record (on your stubs) of how much you spend and for what.
